any better than this! The personal profiles of the many soldiers involved give you a much clearer picture of the closeness involved of the participants. From the generals colonels and down the chain of command to the lowest ranking private, this is a story well told thru the eyes and ears of the combatants. The holding action of the 2nd and 20th Georgia regiments at Rohrbach's bridge that day should go down in the annals of history's bloody battles as an equal to the dramatic struggle of the 101st Airborne at Bastogne, the fighting withdrawal of the 1st Marine Division at the Chosen Reservoir in Korea and the dramatic battle of the brave defenders at the Alamo, as well as the stand at Camerone, Mexico of the Gallant Foreign Legion. I highly recommend this book to all Civil War and military history buffs everywhere. Mr. Tucker cannot be praised enough! Thank God someone has finally stepped forward and carried on the torch to tell the story of these brave men. THANK YOU MR. TUCKER!
