Von Elaine Bergstrom : Nocturne (Austra Series Book 4) (English Edition) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Nocturne (Austra Series Book 4) (English Edition):

Gives hope for another "Blood Alone"Von TasutariBeing completely addicted to "Blood Alone" and "Shattered Glass", having read them about ten times each, I was thrilled to read an announcement of a new book by Elaine Bergstrom and ordered it from immediately, not even knowing the subject.So I was especially glad finding it was an Austra novel.

However, though in stretches it met all my high expectations, not all of it was up to the standard of the first four Austra books. First of all, the character description was not as lovingly detailed as in the prior books, where even the acts of the villains were understandable. In "Nocturne", the characters of Michael and Andrei stay a bit flat. Maybe this is the result of the first person narrator - in those passages where Patrick gives a more objective perspective, we gain more insight into the motives of the characters. What I did not like at all (SPOILER!) is the very quick change of alliances in the final chapters and the not very logical role of Andrei (if he was always on Michael's side, what sense does the scene in chapter 28 make where they spare Andrei for Irena's sake?). (SPOILER END!) However, all in all I liked the book a lot and was glad to hear from the Austras again. A sequel, as hinted at, would be most welcome and certainly read in one go!

Kurzbeschreibung In spite of his nature, Richard, son of Stephen Austra and Helen Wells, plans to live as normal a life as possible in the human world. While attending college in Chicago, he meets the brilliant mezzo soprano and Romanian refugee, Irena Sava. Their love affair-- fueled by music, blood and passion -- seems fated. But soon the young lovers are drawn into a battle with an enemy in the dangerous land Irena thought she had left behind. Pressestimmen Seductive, compelling...fascinating.
