Benedictine monks, he has lived his adult life in Kansas though traveling extensively in the near and far East. The Ethiopian Tattoo Shop is a collection of 12 stories worked round a wonderful frame story which begins and ends in Jerusalem. These stories, which are best read one at a time and savored, mix the ordinary and fantasy in a delightful and life-enhancing way. This is no simple parable book where the message is telegraphed long before the end of the story. It continually intrigues, challenges and surprises the reader. Some of the stories, truly, can be life-changing. Get the book and find out why it has such an unusual title. These are not just great stories but may be helpful for teachers and educators and preachers in giving a fresh and lively insight to the age-old issues of what it means to fully and playfully live. As a bonus the book is illuminated by Ed Hays in his own inimitable style. If you love stories and story-telling don't miss out on this rare treat.
